Light and lustre have a synergy that creates colour and movement, as the angle of the light striking the surface will change colour and the intensity of the lustre as you move around the work.

In my environment there are constantly changing shades and intensities of light as I go between my home and studio: light through mist, rain, clouds - passing, light on clouds, first light, sunset, fading light, moon light, dust, heat and the moment as the sun goes down, that after glow that changes for just a moment the land and sky.
